

choices (n.)

Grammar CH.11

In our lifetime, we are always facing chooses, especially job decisions. It is hard to decide between a secure job, or keep waiting for a more satisfying job. As an office worker who had this kind of experience, I agree that people should take a secure job right away for two reasons, which I will explore in the following essay.

the most important factor

To begin with, working experience is more important than anything. With more working experience, that's mean more opportunities to get a promotion, increasing salary and steady life. Also, more working experience can also be helpful for future resumes, which is a more practical way to get a satisfying job than just waiting. So, it is worth it to work early and accumulate more experience. Take me for example, I accepted my job immediately after I receive the result. And now I have long working experience than my classmates who graduated with me at the same time. During this period, I not only learned more but also got promoted, and it's easier for me to find another job.

Also, more working experience can also be helpful for future resumes, which is a more practical way to get a satisfying job than just waiting. So, it is worth it to work early and accumulate more experience. Take me for example, I accepted my job immediately after I receive the result. And now I have long working experience than my classmates who graduated with me at the same time. During this period, I not only learned more but also got promoted, and it's easier for me to find another job.

These benefits would not have been available for me, had I chosen the wait for a better job.

Second, getting a secure job first can also avoid many risks. It could spend too much time searching for a perfect career and waste a lot of precious time. Even sometimes we thought the job is the one, however, it could be totally different after we sit in the position. Plus, during the time looking for a job, it may cause enormous stress from both financial aspect and emotional. Back to my own instance, I feel steady after I start working, and even it is not my dream job, in the beginning, I am still glad I took it in the first place without more suffering from unemployment.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that it has more benefits to get a secure job right away, rather than seeking another better job. Get into society early can gain more than just waiting for opportunities. It is also more secure without uncertainties and unknown risks.
